DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakajima et al (JP 11-302382 in view of its English Language translation).

Nakajima et al disclose a polymeric resist composition comprising a silicon compound and a pattern forming method employing the composition. The resin meets the limitations of the instant claims for formulas IV and V as R2 is a group unstable to acid. The resist has a molecular weight of between 1,000 and 50,000. Therefore, given the teachings of the reference, the instant claims 1-4 and 7 are anticipated.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 5, 6, and 8-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakajima et al.

Nakajima et al has been discussed above. Additionally, the reference teaches that the solubility inhibiting group and/ or the solubility promoting group may contain a halogen atom, therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare the material of Nakajima et al choosing to add a fluorine atom as the halogen atom, with reasonable expectation of achieving a material having increased stability. Also, the reference teaches a pattern formation method including a bi-layer structure coated onto a substrate and teaches that a pattern is formed in the upper layer and then the underlying layer is etched with that pattern. It is taught in the background that it is known to etch the substrate with that pattern, therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare a semiconductor by the method of Nakajima et al adding a step of etching the substrate as it is known in the art with reasonable expectation of achieving a material having increased stability.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Soorikumaran et al (2002/0090572), Mizutano et al (2001/0038967), Iwasa (EP 745633), Knowlton (6,225,403), Kaneko et al (JP 10-324748) are cited for their teachings of similar materials.
